MARSLAND PRICE AND COMPANY LIMITED.

At the Annual Meeting of this Company, the Chair was taken by Mr. Shapurji B. Broacha, in the absence from Bombay of Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey, Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Mr. Snapurji said it gave him great pleasure to be able to say that the Company was doing well. He had all along considered that the concern was a good one and all that it wanted was more capital and careful handling. With the Hon'ble Mr. Lalubhai Samaldas as the Agent of the Company, he was glad to say they had overcome these difficulties. The Company was now on a firm basis as during the past six months it had done more than well, and was now full of work with more orders promised; so that there was no doubt that the coming year would be a good one.

THE HEALTH OF THE ARMY.

LOOKING at the weekly, undeveloped details brought into India by the first troopship of the season, this week, it is impossible not to ponder on the prospect of their ever seeing their native land again. Surely the supply is running very short if these are the best recruits who can be obtained to make up the strength of the regiments in India. Little wonder that experienced generals shake their heads and talk ominously of conscription. It used to be the practice to bring out tried and seasoned soldiers, men of physical strength, to this country, and the weakling and very young were unhesitatingly rejected. But the practice has apparently been abandoned and it would almost appear as if first come were first taken. It may be immature details will be sent to hill-stations and there given a chance to develop before being transferred to the units in the plains, for the chances are they are free from physical defect and have the makings of men in them. But we fear the Royal Army Medical Corps will find its returns less satisfactory than they have recently been if all this year's drafts are to resemble the first batch. Nevertheless the officers of that splendid corps will not despair, for they have achieved such success in staving off disease that they will undertake the new test with confidence. The health of the British Army in India is as good as it is in England, probably better, and it is to the credit of the Army Doctor that such is the case, for certainly the soldier is exposed to greater dangers and more liable to attack by a larger variety of diseases out here than he is at home While our health statistics in the British Army in India show so much greater success in treatment, as well as in the general health of the troops, returns at home are not so satisfactory and we find Lieutenant-Colonel W. Hill-Climo, M. D., late of the Army Medical Staff, in a magazine article, drawing a comparison between the health statistics of the British Army at home with that of Germany, to the disadvantage of the former. The public, he remarks, consider that the health of the Regular Army is good when the hospital admissions and the death and invaliding ratios are lower than in previous years. But, he points out that while at the present time these statistics indicate the good effects which modern sanitary methods and a more rational system of training the soldier have in reducing mortality in the Home Army from preventible diseases, they afford little information as to the general health of the Army, its powers of endurance and ability to resist disease in war, or as to the nation's health capacity for military service.

The health of the Army is better than that of the Civil population, and figures show that for every five deaths from all causes in the Regular Army serving in the United Kingdom there are eight deaths in the male Civil population of similar ages and that the deaths from diseases of the heart are twenty per cent. higher in the Civil population than in the Army. The scoffer at universal military service as a means of improving national health, observes Colonel Hill-Climo will find in these statistics no support for his views, which are as unsound as they are unpatriotic. But the lesson for the nation is a serious one ; it should consider how it is that there is so marked an inferiority in the health of the civil population, an inferiority which in the case of a great national emergency would cripple its military efficiency. All the more is this necessary because the organisation and training of the Territorial Army lend themselves to hiding the truth from the nation. Even the health of the Regular Army, good as it is in comparison with that of the civil population, is inferior to that of the armies of the great European Powers." Contrasting the health of our Army with that of Germany it appears that the former is on the lower plane, for the mortality from all causes is seven-tenths greater than in the German Army; for disease of the heart there are eleven deaths in the British Army to one in the German; for enteric these proportions are ten to nine and for tubercle of lung there are two deaths in British Army to one in the German. There is but one conclusion to be drawn from these figures, which is that the British nation from a health point of view is less capable of military service, at the present time, than the German.

Without fear of contradiction it is asserted that no European army is more happily circumstanced than the British in regard to sanitary environment and to climate ; the lower death-rate in the Home Army, as compared with that of the male civil population of similar ages, is conclusive; that the cause does not lie with military service besides the improvement which takes place in the physique of the recruit during training is a matter of common knowledge. All nations which have adopted Universal military service "at first unwillingly but of necessity, now recognise its value in the improvement which takes place in the health and character of the people and for that reason they make the sacrifice, if sacrifice it be, gladly." It is regarded as indisputable that universal military service has improved the health of the adult population in Germany, and has at the same time given them a keener sense of public duty. If the United Kingdom wishes to surpass the German Empire in the growth of a virile people, two things are necessary, in the opinion of Colonel Hill-Climo—the adoption of universal military service and the return in large numbers of the people to the land, for no nation can preserve a healthy stock, unless a large proportion of the population is engaged in rural employment. Both suggestions have much to recommend them, and it may be that something of the kind is necessary for the physical improvement of the race. If we take this week's recruits as an illustration of the physique of the nation we must confess that it has deteriorated and is deteriorating. What training disciplins and healthy surrounding may do for them it is impossible to say. Probably a large proportion will materially improve before this time next year, but we fear that the short service system must have an injurious effect on the British Army in India It will be interesting to study the report on the health of the British Army in India, in which this year's recruits are dealt with. We are afraid it will dishearten the officers of the Royal Army Medical Corps.

INDIAN LONGEVITY. A CASE of extreme longevity was recently reported in our telegraphic columns from the Punjab which rouses our scepticism with regard to such instances of human life prolonged far beyond the usual limits. In this particular instance a Mahomedan on the frontier was reported to have died at the great age of a hundred and twenty-five. We should like much to have satisfactory evidence of the man's having attained this very unusual age. For longevity, like most other things, depends on authentic evidence, and whenever a case is reported steps ought to see whether the case is well authenticated or not. We do not know whether any attempt has been made to enquire into the authenticity of this case but deaths at 125 are very rare indeed. There is, we believe, an Anthropological Society in the Punjab, and it lies clearly within its province to make enquiries, and to let the public know whether the man really lived to this age. Sometimes similar cases of longevity are reported from this Presidency also, and we should like the Bombay Anthropological Society to investigate them properly and see whether there is any truth in them. We are inclined to be very sceptical about all such instances reported in this country from time to time, because most people here have a very hazy notion about their own age, and when questioned give very vague and indirect answers. One would suppose that in a land where belief in astrology is universal and everybody is presumed to have his horoscope, it would be easy to get satisfactory answers to enquiries about age. But as a matter of fact the vast majority of people have not got horoscopes, and do not care to know their age. When a man is old, it is enough for him to know that he is old, and as to how old exactly, he frankly will tell you he does not know, perhaps his parents may, but unfortunately they are dead. A favourite mode of answering when pressed about the number of years they have lived, is to say that at the time of any great event which has impressed itself on the popular mind, like the Mutiny, they were of such and such an age. But even in this no great reliance can be placed, as they often are ludicrously wrong in fixing the dates of such events as the Mutiny or the First Afghan War.

The Indian has, in fact, a very hazy and confused notion of time and chronology. To say, therefore, of such a people that one of them has died precisely at the age of 125, would require very strong evidence. We do not say that all reported instances of unusual longevity in India are unreliable. But we are not far wrong when we assert that reliable evidence has never been brought in proof of any such instance. The Indians are now advanced in scientific pursuits, and they should take up this interesting subject of the possibility of very long life in their country by demanding authentic proofs when an instance is reported. In England, too, many instances of abnormal longevity, which were popularly believed, have been found on closer investigation to be mythical and based on very flimsy evidence. The well-known scholar and statesman, Sir George Cornewall Lewis (1809-1863), especially, was very sceptical about a man living beyond a hundred and showed that most recorded cases of men having lived longer could not be verified. The Countess of Desmond is a stock instance of longevity, but it has been shown that the great age of 140 was arrived at in the popular mind by confusing two ladies, if not even three, of that title into one and attributing to a single person the age really lived by two or three individuals. In the case of the Mahomedan landowner from Huzara it is said that he fought in 1830 against Ranjit Singh. Well it remains to be proved that he was 45 at that time.

PRINCIPAL CROPS IN INDIA. SOME instructive figures are given in the report of the area and yields of certain principal crops in India, which have this week been published by the Commercial Intelligence Department. The figures cover various periods from 1895-6 to 1909-10 and show the increased productiveness of the soil during that time. Fifteen years ago 49,396,747 acres were sown with rice and produced 415,355,100 cwts. of grain. In 1909-10 the acreage was 58,249,900 and the product 558,489,000 cwts. Wheat fifteen years ago covered 24,071,320 acres and the yield was 5,380,342 tons. Last year 27,919,400 acres were sown and produced 9,587,700 tons. Cotton increased from 14,515,662 acres and 3,632,042 bales to 20,227,000 acres with 5,135,000 bales. Rape and mustardseed (pure) from 3,004,913 acres and 462,064 tons to 4,119,900 to 752,400 ; Linseed (pure) from 2,954,093 acres and 287,407 tons to 2,597,600 acres and 307,600 tons ; Sessamum (pure) from 3,171,472 acres and 282,129 tons to 4,188,000 and 426,000. Jute from 2,242,700 acres and a yield of 5,551,000 bales grew to 2,776,600 acres and 7,206,600 bales. Indigo fell from 1,414,002 acres producing 190,294 cwts. to 290,300 acres and 39,600 cwts. Figures concerning groundnuts and sugarcane are only available from 1897 and 1898 respectively, but whereas in the former year groundnuts covered 214,803 acres which yielded 55,962 tons ; last year 940,000 acres yielded 413,790 tons, and of sugarcane the acreage fell from 2,485,681 to 2,127,100 while the yield rose to 2,125,300 tons. Other figures are contained in the report, but sufficient are here quoted to indicate that the encouragement given to agriculture has not been without beneficial results.

LONDON, SEPT. 9

THE QUEEN-MOTHER.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA, accompanied by Princess Victoria, arrived at Ballater yesterday morning, and was met by King George. The meeting was a most affectionate one. A guard of honour, composed of members of the Royal Scots Regiment, was drawn up in the Station-square. The King, the Queen-Mother, and Princess Victoria left together in a motor-car. The Queen with the Prince of Wales, Prince Albert, Princess Mary, Prince Henry, and Prince George, received her Majesty at the castle. Later in the morning Queen Alexandra accompanied by Princess Victoria and Prince Christopher of Greece, proceeded to Mar Lodge on a visit to the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife.

GIFTS FROM THE QUEEN-MOTHER.

In remembrance of King Edward, Queen Alexandra, before her departure for Scotland, presented gold cigarettes to Mr. L. F. Wrightson and Mr. Medinger, two of his late Majesty's immediate personal attendants. Mr. Wrightson was the King's valet and was with him at the time of his death. Mr. Medinger also a valet, was off duty at the time, but had been with his master during his stay at Biarritz. The Queen-Mother saw both in her private room and thanked them for all they had done for His Majesty. The central design of the pin is an effigy of King Edward, surmounted by a crown in gold and black enamel, and enclosed by a mourning band of black enamel, relieved at three points by small brilliants. On the back are engraved the dates of the late King's birth and death. Queen Alexandra has made a point of personally thanking every servant and officer from the scullerymaids to the Master of the Household, but she desired to bestow some special memento upon those more closely and immediately connected with her late husband.

ROYALTY.

Yesterday the Czar and Czarina and their children motored to the Johannesberg, one of the loftiest and most beautiful peaks in the Taunus range, where they stayed for tea. To-day the weather has been mostly inclement, but it did not deter their Majesties and their daughters from motoring to Nauheim at ten o'clock for Divine service in the Russian Chapel. The Czar looked a typical English gentleman in silk hat and frock coat, and the Czarina was becomingly dressed in white. The four little Grand Duchesses were charming in light blue. The Czar will not meet the Kaiser until the completion of the Czarina's cure which lasts until October 4 or 5, when the Russian visitors proceed to the castle of Wolfgarten, in another part of Hesse. Nothing is known at the Schloss Friedeg of the German reports that King George will time his official visit to the Kaiser to coincide with the possible meeting of the Kaiser and Czar at Cronberg The Czar is keenly enjoying his unwonted freedom of movement among the verdant valleys of the Taunus. He motored to Munzenberg in an open car with the Grand Duke of Hesse at the wheel and this morning went for another cross-country tramp of five miles accompanied only by his physician in-ordinary and an adjutant. His Majesty incessantly expresses delight at his liberty to roam across the smiling countryside as free from care as a boy. The Imperial children too are revelling in the unusual sensation of approximate liberty. The four young Grand Duchesses were in a postcard shop at Nauheim on Saturday afternoon when the tradesman, noticing that they were attracting a crowd, ceremoniously locked them in. For a moment their Imperial Highnesses thought that they were trapped.

AT GOLF.

The Duchess of Connaught, partnered by Arthur Grant, took part in two foursomes on the Craigielaw links yesterday. In the morning the Duchess of Connaught and the professional beat the Duchess of Marlborough and Mr. Evan Charteris by 5 and 4; while in the afternoon they defeated Mrs. Asquith and Mr. Robert Lyttelton by 2 and 1. Princess Patricia of Connaught also played two rounds.

ROYAL ROMANCE.

The marriage of Miss Elkins, daughter of the American senator, to the Duke of the Abruzzi, cousin of the King of Italy, will take place, and the date has been fixed for the end of next February. The Duke will go to stay with the Elkins family in ten days' time to settle the final arrangements regarding the presentation of his bride to the King and Queen of Italy and the formal announcement of the engagement. The date of the meeting between the Italian Sovereigns and the Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Elkins is kept secret in order to avoid the attentions of the newspapers, but I understand on good authority that it may take place during the forthcoming Italian manœuvres in a small town near Racconigi. Miss Elkins will then receive at the hands of the King the title of Countess of Teramo, that name being taken from a town in the Abruzzi region. The Duke of the Abruzzi (Prince Luigi of Savoy), the first royal prince to choose an American bride, is thirty-seven years of age. His father was from 1870 to 1875 King of Spain. He is one of the handsomest princes in Europe, and is a naval officer and an intrepid explorer. His feats of mountaineering and exploration in Alaska (1897), the Arctic (1899-1900), the Mountains of the Moon in East Africa (1906), and the Himalayas (1909) have won the recognition of many learned societies. The Duke is extremely wealthy. Miss Katherine Elkins is the beautiful daughter of the well-known Virginian senator. Both her father and grandfather are multi-millionaires.

"£20,000,000 BABY."

The Trans-atlantic cables are vibrating intensely with the weighty intelligence of the safe arrival at Plymouth of Master Vinson Walsh McLean. Though only nine months old, the infant multi-millionaire has been the social lion of the summer season. He is the grandson of two fabulously wealthy men. His mother before her marriage was Miss Evelyn Walsh, known in Washington society as "the girl who has everything she wants." The father, Mr. Edward Beale McLean, before he met Miss Walsh, had everything he wanted, too.

SECRET WEDDING.

Just before the election of President Taft they were married secretly in Denver thus avoiding an elaborate wedding in Washington. The baby McLean first became a national figure when an attempt was made a month ago to kidnap him. A burglar entered the residence of the McLeans at Bar Harbour through the nursery window. He escaped, but without the baby. After that the infant was never allowed out without a strong guard. America being a land where the crime of kidnapping flourishes, the parents of the £20,000,000 baby had an iron-clad perambulator constructed in which the unconscious Master Vinson, was wheeled daily on the lawn. Sitting in the interior, fitting up with the height of luxury, the baby looked upon the world through a cage of steel bars riveted to the body of the carriage. The American Press since then has revelled in wild imaginings as to the amount of ransom the successful kidnapper of this unique baby might demand. Now that the baby has safely crossed the Atlantic the newspaper scribes think that the danger of kidnapping may be regarded as past. Master Vinson accordingly may ride once more in the rosewood and gold perambulator presented to his grandfather, Mr. Walsh, by the late King Leopold. The child has already more toys than any royal child through he is still too young to enjoy them, while at the various Walsh and McLean states in America four elaborately furnished nurseries await his pleasure.

H. G. WELLS ON WOMEN.

I confess myself altogether feminist. I want this coddling and brow-beating of women to cease (writes Mr. H. G. Wells in the "English Review.") I want to see women come in free and fearless to a full participation in the collective purpose of mankind. Women, I am convinced, are as fine as men ; they can be as wise as men ; they are capable of far greater devotion than men. I want to see them citizens, with a marriage law framed primarily for them and for their protection and the good of the race, and not for men's satisfactions and peace of mind. I want to see them bearing and rearing good children in the State as a generously rewarded public duty and service, choosing their husbands freely and discerningly, and in no way enslaved by or subordinated to the men they have chosen. The social consciousness of women seems to me as unworked, an almost untouched, mine of wealth for the constructive purpose of the world. I want to change the respective value in the family group altogether, and make the homes indeed the women's kingdom and the mother the owner and responsible guardian of her children.

THE WEATHER.

It has been a glorious week in the South of England, not a drop of rain, just warm and sunny and every one has been so busy, the farmers getting in their corn, the children gathering black-berries and mushrooms which are very plentiful, and people generally enjoying the late summer.

CHAT ABOUT BOOKS.

BARKERS, by E. H. Lacon Watson—(Murray)—Barkers is an old fashioned publishing house belonging to the Fairfax family. And the tale is told in an interesting manner by Henry Roscoe, who is himself a writer and is very amusing, always telling how people read his books and how wonderful they are considered. Fairfax and Roscoe determine to make "Barkers" a thoroughly up-to-date paying concern to start publishing novels and a magazine. This is a very amusing part and several very funny episodes are introduced. Of course the business fails, but Henry Roscoe and Fairfax are, not ruined and all ends happily. The love thread is a thin one, but it is not the tale, which is really interesting throughout.

Seeing that the more homage his servants pay to him, the more grievous are the torments with which he torments him." Also "certainly the Lordship of Love is good for it lifts the mind above all mean things.

MESSRS. HODDER AND STOUGHTON will publish Commander Peary's new book entitled "The North Pole" about the first or second week in October. This will contain a preface by Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, and there will be at least 100 illustrations and probably between 300 and 400 pages of matter. We anticipate that the price at which the work will be sold in India will be about Rs. 12.

IT has been been often noticed that many great men have uttered the noblest sentiments of their lives in the moments when they were already under the cold hand of Death. John Hoppner, they seem to have felt the approach of eternal silence inspire them with the spirit of prophecy and it has not even been necessary that that should be "an unconscionable time a-dying" for their last words to be alive with dignity and significance. The truth of this observation has evidently been appreciated by Colonel T. H. Lewin, who has prepared for Messrs. Constable "A Book of Life and Death" which is to deal exclusively with the last moments of the famous. It was originally suggested to its compiler by a familiar passage in the Essays of Montigue, and its object is to bear record to the courage and equanimity with which many of the world's bravest spirits have faced the oncoming of inevitable death. The stories are arranged choronologically, from the record of Socrates to that of the late Empress of China, and if such a pageant of the passing does not ethically teach the rustic moralist to die, it may at least claim to possess an historical and agomantic interest which should appeal to every class of student, however superficial.

YET more anthologies! The coming season promises to be exceptionally rich in this cosy and companionable form of literature. We have already referred to several volumes of the kind, and now announcement reaches us of two separate volumes of poetry in praise of Oxford—one collected by Mr. Thomas Seccombe and another by Professor William Knight, who thus follow in the steps of Mr. J. B. Firth, whose "Minstrelsy of Isis" was certainly wide and comprehensive enough for most tastes. To these volumes will follow a collection of poems in celebration of the four seasons, edited by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Melville, who have already produced several anthologies of charm and variety. The present book, to be issued by Messrs. Williams and Norgate, will range from Shakespeare to Michael Fairless, and from Shelley to Mr. Alfred Noyes, and claims to be designed "for the busy man with literary tastes who has not time to wade through the works of many writers to find favourite passages."

THERE are few better authorities upon naval affairs than Mr. David Hanny, who has written sagely in many places upon the life of the seaman, and was also responsible for the best annotated edition of Southey's "Life of Nelson" ever put upon the market. It will be good news, therefore, to the nautically-minded that Messrs William Blackwood and Sons have a new book by Mr. Hanney in the press, which deals with the personnel of the British Navy, both historically and analytically. It is to be called "Ships and Men," and is sure to be full of sound information and good writing.

THE coming autumn will see the usual crop of colour-books "at various prices to suit all purses, as the publisher's prospectus is wont to put it. We have already referred to Mr. Cecil Aldin's "Pickwick," which promises to be among the most popular of its kind, and it is now announced that Mr. Heinemann has assured Mr. Arthur Rackham's new book, a full illustrated edition of Wagner's version of the "Nibelungenlied." From the same publisher will come a pictorial rendering of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" by that general favourite, Mr. Hugh Thomson; while Messrs. Chapman and Hall will commence this month a "Burlington Library" of illustrated classics, in which every book will contain twenty-four coloured pictures, at the low price of 3s. 6d. per volume. The earliest of the series will be "Cranford," "The Vicar of Wakefield," the "Essays of Elia," "A Tale of Two Cities," and "The Imitation of Christ," and the artists engaged have all worked under the personal supervision of Mr. W. G. Paulson Townsend, of the School of Art, South Kensington.

ROWDYISM AT MATHERAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—Our nearest hill station is never more attractive than at the present season, when the showers still fall at intervals and Matheran wears her mantle of green untouched by the drought of the cold season that kills all the grass and tender plants. The roads are clean and free from dust, and the air is as pure as it is possible to be, so that distant views have a clearness of outline and brilliancy of colour that we

FRESH RIOTS IN BERLIN.

Two Men Killed.

BRITISH JOURNALISTS ATTACKED.

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

LONDON, SEPT. 29.

The disturbances in Berlin broke out afresh at 7 o'clock yesterday evening. The police used their sabres on the retreating mob, and strewed the thoroughfare with wounded. Many persons were seriously wounded, and had to be taken to hospital. A policeman and a civilian died of their injuries yesterday.

Reuter, British newspaper correspondents, including Reuter's, were wantonly attacked by the police with sabres and injured.

An official statement issued yesterday morning declares that the mobs are directed by leaders experienced in street fighting, and instructs the police to take more rigorous action. All taverns in the riot area were closed by the police at 5 o'clock in the evening.

LATER.

Berlin telegrams state that besides the wounded journalists, other English pressmen were chased and ordered off. The riot area was barricaded last night. It is impossible to tell the result of the fighting within, but it is admitted that the police used most drastic methods, sabring, shooting and riding down people ruthlessly. It is possible that the troops will be called out and martial-law proclaimed to-day.

The extraordinary dimensions assumed by the disturbances, originating in a strike of 285 coal porters which was on the eve of settlement, are attributed to the conduct of the police which has inflamed the whole working class population.

EUROPEAN ATTACKED … SYCES.

Rowdy Scene In Calcutta.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, SEPT. 29.

The vicinity of Messrs Hart Brothers' stable in Dharrumtollah St, was the scene of considerable excitement at noon to-day owing to some trouble between the firm's break driver Mr. Marriott and the syces numbering considerably over a thousand.

It is alleged that Mr. Marriott had struck one of the syces with the result that between three and four hundred syces assembled and made a rush upon their co-religionist's assailant who in order to protect himself seized a chain which was smashed to pieces by the men. Mr. Marriott rushed across the street, followed closely by a contingent of between 450 and 500 syces who were armed with sticks. Mr. Marriott, however, succeeded in gaining the gate of the Boarding house in Free School Street before the men could get hold of him. Another European whom the crowd mistook for Mr. Marriott was assaulted at the Boarding house gate, but the injuries he received are not of a serious nature. The progress of the crowd was checked at the gate into which the victim had escaped. The riotous syces realising that there were no hopes of wreaking their vengeance returned to the stables.

In the meantime a Sub-Inspector and two sections of constables arrived on the scene, but their services were not required. Mr. Marriott beyond receiving a few cuts from sticks escaped injuries. Everything is quite again at the stables.

INSURANCE OF A HORSE.

Claim Disallowed.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, SEPT. 29.

A suit was heard to-day before Mr. Pearson, the Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court, in which Mr. Gluiksman sued the Yorkshire Insurance Company for the recovery of Rs. 1,000 on a policy issued by the Company to him on a mare belonging to the plaintiff which subsequently was destroyed.

The Judge in giving judgment said :—"The defendants have set up a defence that under clause 6 of the conditions to the policy, 24 hours' notice was not given to them previous to the destruction of the animal under veterinary advice. In this case it was in the interest of humanity that the animal should be slaughtered, but I cannot accept the interpretation. On the merits of the case they are all in favour of the plaintiff, but on the non-compliance of the plaintiff, omitting to give 24 hours' notice previous to destruction, I must find against the plaintiff.

"I cannot refrain from expressing astonishment that this Company presumably 'of some reputation and standing have taken up the attitude they have in this case, and shielded themselves under the technicalities of clause 6. I shall be surprised to learn that it would do them any good. I must dismiss the suit, but without costs."

His Worship found accused guilty, but as he seemed to have failed to make the declaration more from ignorance than from any deliberate intention to break the law and as the Crown Prosecutor only asked for a nominal punishment his Worship sentenced accused to a fine Rs. 5 or in default to two weeks' simple imprisonment.

NASIK CONSPIRACY CASE.

The Study of Mazzini.

OBJECTS OF THE "MITRA MELA."

The hearing of the Nasik Conspiracy case was resumed on Thursday at the Bombay High Court before the Special Tribunal consisting of the Hon'ble Sir Basil Scott, Chief Justice, and the Hon'ble Sir Narayen Chandavarkar and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Heaton.

The examination-in-chief of Raguaath Venkatesh Gossavi was continued. He said the poems shown to him by Govind Darekar were the same as those which appeared in the "Laghu Abhinava Bharat Mala" (the New India Series). At the suggestion of Vinayak Savarker, the name "Abhinava Bharat," (i. e., the New India) was given to "Mitra Mela" in 1906, in imitation of the name "the New Italy," coined by Mazzini. Vinayak Savarkar used to read before the Society the life of Mazzini in Marathi, his object according to him being to make India independent, just as Mazzini made his country independent. Vinayak Savarker told them that to carry out their object they must start secret societies and collect funds to enable them to wage war. The Marathi edition of the life of Mazzini was published after Vinayak Savarker's departure for England. The poems, entitled "Laghu Abhinava Bharat-Mala," and the life of Mazzini were published out of the funds of the secret society. The funds were given to the treasurer, Ganesh Damoder Savarker, and Waman Shastri Datar. There were three grades of membership, the top, the middle and the bottom. To the top class belonged Vinayak and Ganesh Savarker, Gorhe, Darekar, and Bhat; to the middle, Vishnu Kalkar, Dhanappa, Khushalsing Purdeshi, and Mahadeo Gadgil; and to the third Chandratre, Shankergir, Gosavi and Narayan Savarker. The witness belonged to the top class. The members of the top class could not attend the meetings of the other two classes. There was an oath of the society which was given to those members, who passed out of the bottom and middle classes into the top class. The formula of the oath was : 'Remembering my family god and my parents I will do all I can for the advancement of my religion and my country, and for obtaining independence." The witness never took the oath, because he was one of the founders of the society. Dhanappa used to give instructions in the classes. He was not paid. Among the outsiders, who were entertained by the society from its funds, were: Shivram Mahadev Pranjpe, editor of the "Kal;" Phadke, editor of the "Vihari;" Syed Ayder Razzak; Arabindo Ghose of Bengal, and others whose names he did not now remember. The witness was shown photographs from which he identified several of the accused. One of the objects of the "Mitra Mela" was religious, namely, to celebrate the Ganpati and Shivaji festivals.

"DREADFUL IDEAS."

Continuing, the witness said, he gave his reasons for severing his connection with the society. He declared in the "Mitra Mela" that to entertain such dreadful ideas was to invite danger to themselves.

Cross-examined by Mr. Rangnekar, the witness said the annual income of his inam land was from Rs. 500 to Rs. 600. He had studied up to the first or second standard in English. The inam stood in his father's name. The witness had two brothers. He now did money-lending business. He was also an agriculturist. He did not tell Mr. Montgomery that he was an Inamdar.

The Chief Justice : What is the object of putting these questions ?

Mr. Rangnekar : I want to show that he is a man of no means.

Continuing, the witness said, he had been doing money-lending business for the past three years. He did business to the extent of Rs. 3,000. He was not a servant in the employ of the Swadeshi Hitechu Trading Company. He was a partner of the firm. He had never committed defalcations. He had passed a promissory note for Rs. 1,500 in favour of the directors. He did so against his will. In 1908 a suit was filed against him for the amount, and a decree had been passed against him. He was going to appeal against that decree. His father was a party to the promissory note and a defendant to the suit. He was quite sure that he left the "Mitra Mela" in August, 1908. He had said before Mr. Montgomerie that he was a member of the "Mela" up to the end of 1907. He had also said before Mr. Garrett that he was a member up to September or October, 1908. The witness did not accurately remember the date or the month. In the meetings of the Society the witness read the life of Ramdas. The life of Vasudeo Balwant Phadke which was in Marathi, was read out before the Society twice or thrice. Among the other books read were the lives of Shivaji, Mazzini and Garibaldi The life of Mazzini was read about ten or fifteen times. The witness could not say whether Vinayak Savarkar read these books every time. Sometimes Bhat read them. The witness did not know when Mazzini was born or when he died. He did not even know in what country he was born. He did not know who he was. He only knew that Mazzini made his country independent and established secret societies. He did not know who were Mazzini's associates or disciples. He did not know to what country Garibaldi belonged, or who he was. Some books on the English Revolution were also read. About three years ago the witness protested against the reading of such books. He did not remember before whom he made this protest; but they told him that he need not listen to what was read. He made this protest eight or ten months after Vinayak Savarker left for England. It was Ganesh Savarker who told him he need not listen.

A NEW AND USEFUL WEAPON.

The first talk about the bomb was in 1907. Ganesh Savarkar informed the Society that a new weapon, called a bomb, had been introduced in Calcutta, and that it would be a useful weapon for their purpose. Then there was a discussion about physical culture. The witness was against it. He used to go to Ganesh Savarkar's house, but not much. He was not a great friend of Ganesh Savarkar. In their meetings Sakharam Gorhe started a discussion about arms. There was a constitution of the Society. Its rules were not printed, but there was a register of members. He told Mr. Montgomerie that there were rules of the Society. When Pranjpe attended the meeting of the witness' society at Nasik, he addressed it and gave some advice. He did not deliver a lecture. The meetings were held on Saturdays at the house of Abs Darekar.

Cross-examined by Mr. Baptista, the witness said, for three years from 1903 there were no new members. When the Society was started the form of the oath was not settled. The first new member was admitted in 1906. Twenty or twenty-five new members were admitted in that year. He heard oaths being administered to one or two members. Before he first saw an oath being given, new members had been admitted. He heard the same kind of oath administered. About the time he first saw an oath being given, once or twice references were made about Sirkar's zoolum in the Society's meetings. The rules were orally settled when the Society was first started. They were subsequently reduced to writing. In the witness' presence no resolution was passed changing the object of the Society. Such a resolution was passed in his absence in 1906 and shown to him afterwards. By that resolution politics were added to the other objects of the Society. The witness did not approve of this and advised his colleagues not to mix up in such affairs. He continued to be a member after this in the hope of dissuading his friends from the new course. Until 1906 there were no secrets of the Society, except as regarded instructions in physical culture. The new change was for an unconstitutional movement. The witness was next cross-examined in regard to the three classes of members of the Society. He had stated that the object of the members of the bottom class was to prepare the minds of others by delivering lectures, singing songs, etc; the object of the middle class was to give members instructions in physical culture, such as wrestling, stick or sword-play, etc ; and the object of the top class was to collect arms, &c.

Mr. Baptista.—The object of the bottom class was perfectly innocent and legitimate ?

The witness.—I cannot say whether it was lawful.

Had they anything to do with the revolutionary ideas ?—Yes.

All ?—Yes, all.

They did not know the secret object, of the top class ?—They knew its object; but did not know what it did. The object of all the three classes was the same, but their work was different.

What do you mean by Sirkar's zoolum ?—Excessive taxation, like income-tax, the complaint that justice is not being properly administered, etc.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

Are these the worst things that you can mention ?—That depends upon how one looks at the matter.

You have stated that the object was to prepare the minds to put a stop to the Sirkar's zoolum. That means that they wanted to ask Government for the reduction of assessment ?—No, their object was to take obstructive measures for not paying the assessment when Government demanded it.

You have talked about waging a war. Do you know how a war is waged by one nation against another ?—I personally do not know.

I suppose you have heard about wars being conducted by soldiers, and guns and cannons and things of that sort ?—Yes.

Do you know if such a war was contemplated by the Society ?—If not, why were the arms collected?

Were any guns and cannons collected ?—Not in my presence.

Did they discuss the waging of war against British soldiers in India ?—They said war should be waged against the Government.

What acts did they contemplate ?—To wage war in order to obtain "swaraj."

Do you mean a war which one nation conducts against another ?—Yes.

So far as you are concerned were any arms collected ?—No, not in my presence.

You never saw any ?—No.

Not even a pistol ?—No.

Did any member resist payment of any tax ?—Obstruction was offered. The Bande Mataram case was an instance in point.

Has your Society discussed any plan for waging war ?—It was settled that arms should be collected.

Mr. Gadgil next cross-examined the witness.

The further hearing was adjourned till to-day.

SMALL GAME SHOOTING SEASON 1910-11.

The Honorary Secretary mentioned that it was intended to again issue in the next number of the Journal a 'Small Game Shooting Return' and he appealed to all members to either fill in the schedule themselves or get their friends to do so.

In the number of the Journal about to be issued there is a short report on the shooting season of 1908-09 which is based on only 28 returns and is therefore very incomplete. From various causes this report has been delayed but it is hoped in future to issue it in the first number of the Journal which comes out after the shooting season. The schedule has been enlarged to enable fuller information to be given which will add to the interest of the report. The Honorary Secretary drew the attention of those present to the fact that not a single return had been made by a Bombay member for the season 1908-09, and, therefore, he regretted to say the Bombay district was not mentioned in the Report.

He added that considering there must be at least 500 members of the Society who shoot regularly more schedules should be returned and he hoped that there would be a much larger number sent in at the end of the coming season.

Actual dates are required particularly for Snipe Duck and Grey Quail, arrivals and departures, and members are specially requested to note whether the Snipes are 'fantail' or 'pintail.'

Mr. Millard exhibited a few new plants introduced into Bombay, namely Gloriosa rothschildiana, Odontodenia harrisii, Clerodendron urticaefolia, Tecoma smithii and musa coccinea, all in flower and the foliage plants, Dieffenbachia majesticum, and Splendens, Tocoes latifolia, Nepenthes mastersiana, Phoenix roebaline, Dracena sanseriana and Broomfieldi, Musa vittata, Cissus cantserlii Heliconia Edwardus Rex, and young specimens of the handsome flowering tree Gliricidia maculata and the candle tree—Parmentiera cereifera—the last two having been raised from seeds received from Peradeniya.

PAPERS READ.

1. Note on prehistoric tree-stumps discovered in Bombay Harbour.

Mr. L. H. Savile said, the note on prehistoric tree-stumps discovered in the Bombay Harbour, records the finding of 4 trees of a species of Acacia, embedded in the blue clay which overlies the rocks moorum at a depth of 46 feet below the level of high water spring tides. The position of these trees which was shown on a plan, is nearly 1-2 a mile from what a few years ago was the foreshore opposite St. George's Hospital.

Reference was made to a paper by W. E. Hart on "prehistoric Bombay" which mentions the finding of similar trees in the excavation from Prince's Dock, and the present discovery goes to confirm the conclusion arrived at by Mr. Hart that our present Bombay has experienced at least two upheavals and subsequent subsidences before as a single Island she rose, as did of old, the Goddess of Beauty, from the sea.

2. Note on the varieties of Hibiscus cultivated in gardens.

Mr. W. S. Millard said he need hardly apologise for introducing an Horticultural subject as it was impossible to separate Horticulture from Botany or from Agriculture. It was recognized almost everywhere now that these sister subjects must advance hand-in-hand and it was only on this side of India that the branch of Horticulture had been so woefully neglected although in Agriculture we had the reputation of being in advance of the rest of India. Mr. Millard said he had frequently been beseeched to start a Horticultural Society for Bombay but he could not see how any material advantage was to be gained by such a Society without a Horticultural garden in which experiments could be carried on. Once possessing such a garden he believed that the large amount of interest which was taken by residents of Bombay would ensure a flourishing Horticultural Society.

He said from information he had obtained he believed that various persons had from time to time made collections of the different varieties of Hibiscus. Mr. Robert Campbell many years ago had a good collection on Malabar Hill and he remembered hearing of a Parsee gentleman living he thought at Tardeo who possessed some 25 different varieties, some of these varieties seemed to have disappeared and as the European's residence in India could never be more than a temporary one, it was greatly to be desired that Native enthusiasts in horticulture should try and establish collections of these and other flowers (which might almost be called indigenous now to India) and thus guarantee continuity. Mr. Millard said that his attention had been drawn to this subject by Mr. O. V. Bosanquet, I.C.S., of Baroda, who was trying to start a collection there. He then referred to the different varieties of which specimens were shown.

On the varieties of Hibiscus cultivated in gardens.

Single varieties 24, Double varieties 7, and the following gentlemen were thanked for sending specimens :—

Mr. C. M. Cursetjee, Dr. R. F. Seervai, The Superintendent, Victoria, Gardens, Mr. W. F. Pechey, Byculla Club, Col. K. R. Kirtikar, I. M. S., (Retd.), Lt. Col. J. G. Hojel, I. M. S, Capt. Haynes (R. A.), Mr. John T. Fry.

The pleadings in this suit have already been reported.

Mr. Setalwad raised the following issues on behalf of the defendant: (1) Whether in July 1909, the plaintiff was a creditor of Dwarkadas and whether the lease of premises No. 29, Princess Street, was deposited with him by way of an equitable mortgage as alleged in the plaint; (2) whether the purchase by the plaintiff of right, title and interest of Dwarkadas of the premises was not with notice of and subject to the claim of the defendant as alleged in the written statement; (3) whether on the death of Dwarkadas the said premises were in charge of the man of Dwarkadas and that the defendant subsequently took forcible possession of the same as alleged in the plaint; (4) whether the defendant was not put in possession by Dwarkadas and has ever since continued to be in possession of the premises under the circumstances set forth in the written statement; (5) whether the defendant has not a valid charge on the disputed premises for sums mentioned in the sixth para. of the written statement; (6) whether the defendant has not a valid charge on the disputed premises for the amount mentioned in the seventh para. of the written statement; (7) whether the plaintiff is entitled to the possession of the disputed premises without paying the defendant sums for which he claims charge on them; (8) whether the plaintiff has sustained any and if so what damages by the action of the defendant to recover the same; (9) whether the counter-claim of the defendant should be allowed and the general issue.

Mr. Jinnah, on behalf of his client raised the following three issues:—(1) Whether in any event the plaintiff is not entitled to priority over the defendant in respect of sums claimed by him from Dwarkadas; (2) whether in any event the defendant is not paid the whole or any part of his claim against Dwarkadass and the disputed property by Dwarkadass; and (3) whether various payments made by Dwarkadass to the defendant were not appropriated towards the sums due in respect of the disputed property.

Mr. Jinnah then opened his case. He said that his case was that Dwarkadass was indebted to Mr. Snapurji in large sums and in July 1908 Dwarkadass deposited the title-deeds of the property with the plaintiff by way of an equitable mortgage. After this Dwarkadass made an application to the City Trust on the 2nd August 1909 for a licence. The Trust replied that the license would be granted if Dwarkadass paid up the arrears of rent, which annually amounted to Rs. 11,590. Dwarkadass then proposed certain terms to Mr. Orr, Chairman of the Trust. The plaintiff paid the arrears of rent in August and a receipt was passed acknowledging payment. Dwarkadass then committed suicide and on the 3rd September 1909 the Trust secretary informed the plaintiff that the trustees had no objection to grant him a license if he agreed to stand responsible for the rents. In the meantime a creditor of Dwarkadass filed a creditor's suit against the estate of Dwarkadass and Mr. R. D. Setna was appointed a receiver of the estate. Mr Setna as receiver then had an equity of redemption and he sold that equity of redemption to Snapurji who had under the circumstances become the owner of the property.

The defendant's case, said counsel, that as far back as 1906, he as contractor was put in possession of the plots and as having such possession he had a charge which had priority. The plaintiff's case was that he had taken forcible possession of the plot and that he had no charge whatever. The story of the charge was not true and was simply put forward to realise something from the property as the defendant knew that he would not be able to realise anything from Dwarkadass' estate. Mr. Jinnah said that his client had suffered considerable damages which he would prove this client had to pay rents to the City Trust and could not let the property as it was incomplete.

As to the consent decree, Mr. Jinnah said that that was wholly the outcome of Mr. Snapurji's generosity as the defendant appealed to Snapurji and threw himself on Snapurji's mercy.

Mr. Jinnah then came to discuss the issues when his Lordship drew his attention to the issue of priority and said that had very little to do with the suit which was purely an ejectment suit.

After some discussion in which Mr. Setalvad took part, his Lordship struck off the counter-claim observing that the litigation would not come to an end even if the counter-claim was investigated. His Lordship said that the counter-claim, if gone through with this suit, would embarrass matters further and as he had power to strike off the counter-claim he did so.

Mr. Jinnah then put in the documents relating to the mortgage and assignment of the property and said that the burden of providing the charge now lay on the defendant.

Mr. Setalvad then called his evidence.

Charles F. Stevens, architect, examined-in-chief, said he knew the building No. 29 Princess Street. he had designed it and supervised its construction as far as it had gone. No building contract was prepared by him. The building contract was not prepared at Dwarkadass' instructions. Rajoo was in possession of the premises till April 1909 when witness left for England.

Cross-examined, witness said that Dwarkadass had given him directions in witness' office in the presence of Rajoo and Dwarkadass' clerk Krisnaji. That was in April or May 1906. He had not taken a note of this in his diary. The Princess-street plots were then purchased by Dwakadass. Dwarkadass told witness that no building was to be prepared but the bills were to be sent to Dwarkadass who would pay at his convenience. Rajoo was to be looked at as the owner until the building was fully paid for. He did not know whether any possession was given to Rajoo or not.

Q.—You do not know that Rajoo was in possession

A.—I have stated all I know. I know nothing about the possession.

By "the building being paid for" was meant the payment of witness's bills in respect of the building. Rajoo was to be the owner of the two plots in the Princess Street until the costs of the buildings on those two plots were paid off. Dwarkadass had also then discussed about the Colaba plot. It might be that Dwarkadass had not bought the Colaba plot till after April or May 1906. He did not know that the Colaba plot was not put up for sale till December 1906. The Colaba plot was to be a contract and there was no question of ownership. He could not say whether Dwarkadass' son was then present or not.

At this stage Mr. Setalvad informed the Court that the dispute was settled on the following terms: On Mr. Snapurji paying Rs. 20,000 to the defendant, Mr. Snapurji to forthwith have possession of the building as it stands. Each party to bear their own costs. The Rs. 20,000 to be in full satisfaction of the defendant's claim.

A CASE FROM ADEN.

On the Appellate Side of the Bombay High Court yesterday, before the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Batchelor and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice G. S. Rao, Mr Kasi Kabirudin, with Mr. P. V. Nijsur, appeared on behalf of Mahomed Ibrahimkhan Abdulla Khan and applied for a revision of the order made by Lieut. A. S. Meek, First Class Magistrate of Aden, who convicted accused under section 334 of the Indian Penal Code and fined him Rs. 100 or in default two months' rigorous imprisonment. Brigadier General J. A. Bell, Political Resident of Aden, confirmed the sentence.

The Judgment of the Magistrate showed that the accused was a Hospital Assistant in charge of the Malla Small Pox Hospital at Aden. The complainant, a fisherman, Salmi, charged him with extorting a fish worth about an anna in January. After the alleged extortion the complainant was found trespassing in the compound of the Hospital and he was sent to the Police Thana where the charge against the Hospital Assistant was made.

Their Lordships admitted the appeal and sent for the papers in the case from Aden.

DEMETRACOPULO'S INSOLVENCY.

At the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Dinshaw Davar recorded the evidence of Mr. A. H Hammond, partner in the firm of Messrs. Shaw Wallace and Company on the issue of undue preference raised by the opposing creditors in the insolvency of C. J. Demetracopulo.

Mr. A. H. Hammond examined by Mr. Desai, said that he was a partner in the firm of Messrs. Shaw Wallace and Co. The first insolvent was not a partner of the firm. The insolvent was a manager of the produce department of the firm and he was responsible for the losses. His remuneration was half the profit of that department. There was an agreement between the insolvent and the firm in regard to that arrangement. Under the agreement the insolvent had to deposit Rs. 30,000. The insolvent had only deposited half of the amount. The deposit was received in cash. That arrangement was dissolved in February, 1909. Between the agreement and his retirement the insolvent brought in more money. He had 1,485 shares of the Bamankova mines on which he had advanced Rs. 10,000 to the insolvent. He had the transfers with him and subsequently those shares were transferred to his name. Some of the shares were sold and some as had not sold were with him now. The quoted value of the share was Rs. 7-12 but he could not have sold for Rs. 6. He did not take a promissory note from the insolvent at the time he made the advance of Rs. 10,000. There was no writing passed in regard to those shares and the advance made on them. In the first instance the shares became a pledge. It was impossible to say whether the business was paying or not during the time the insolvent managed the department. The estimate of the insolvent showed that there was a profit of half a lakh of rupees.

POLICE COURT.

ALLEGED TRESPASS.

YESTERDAY, at the Esplanade Police Court, before Mr. H. Campbell, Acting Chief Presidency Magistrate, Inspector Barker charged Duncan Spring, a Negro, with trespassing on board the s.s. "Devanna." It will be remembered that the accused was ordered to be sent to the Police Surgeon for observation as to the state of his mind. Captain E. Gordon-Tucker, I. M. S., Police Surgeon, deposed that the accused had been under his observation for two days and he found that the accused was of unsound mind. Asked by the Magistrate whether he had anything to say, the accused replied in the negative. The Magistrate then informed the accused that a competent medical officer had declared him to be insane. The accused smiled and replied that he was all right now and asked his Worship to let him go. His Worship asked the accused if he was pretending to be mad, to which the accused replied that he knew everything that was going on around him. Asked by the Magistrate why he had gone on board the ship, the accused said God had sent him there. As nobody stood surety for the accused, he was ordered to be sent to the common jail pending the orders of the Government.

BOMBAY UNIVERSITY.

Proposed Amendment of Rules.

A MEETING of the Bombay University Senate will be held to-morrow at 5 o'clock when a long list of business has to be gone through.

Under the existing rules it was impossible for Medical Students to take the M. B., B. S Degree before they are 22 years old and the age of limit fixed for eligibility for Government of India scholarship completely shuts out all medical students from the benefit of it. The Bombay University requested Government to move the Secretary of State for India to raise the minimum qualifying age for the scholarship to 24 or 25 in the case of Medical graduates only. In reply to this Government have informed the University that the Government of India have sanctioned the proposal and the age limit of 22 years is raised to 24 years in case of Medical graduates only of the Bombay University. Dr. Meyer has given notice to move a proposal to make the necessary change in the regulations of the Scholarship.

Lieut.-Col. Meyer will also move "That the Government Laboratory, Parel, and the Bombay Veterinary College, Parel be removed from the list of Laboratories recognized for the practical courses for the Examination for the Degree of Bachelor of Hygiene."

This resolution is deemed necessary as the two institutions expressed their inability to undertake to give the course of Laboratory instruction in the subjects of bacteriology, parasitology and pathology and asked their names to be omitted from the list of recognised institutions for the purpose.

The next business is the consideration of the desirability of so modifying Regulation 49 as to permit of amendments being moved without previous notice at a Meeting of the Senate with the unanimous consent of the meeting.

In this connection Mr. Natrajan has given notice to move that the following sentence be added at the end of Regulation 49 (pp. 44-45 of the Calendar for 1909-10):—"Amendments of which notice has not been duly given as required in this Regulation, can nevertheless be moved at a Meeting at which the motion to which they relate is being considered, provided no Member present objects to their being brought forward."

Mr. L. A. Shah has given due notice of the following amendment:—That the words "and provided the Vice-Chancellor, or in his absence, the Chairman of the Meeting think it proper to allow them to be brought forward" be added after the last word of the proposition.

Dr. Acasio G. Viegas has given due notice of the following amendment:—Omit all the words after the word 'provided' and substitute the following words: "that, on the mover reading out his amendment or amendments to the meeting without any remarks whatsoever, prefatory or supplementary, five members stand up in token of their support thereof, failing which the amendment or amendments shall drop and the mover resume his seat."

The items of business on the agenda are:—To consider the desirability of so revising the standard for passing the Previous, Intermediate Arts, Intermediate Science, B.A. and B. Sc. Examinations as to empower the Meeting of Examiners to pass a candidate who may have failed in one subject only provided he has obtained an aggregate of at least 40 per cent. of the total marks.

The transference to the Previous Examination of University scholarships at present attached to the Matriculation Examination which are tenable at the Grant Medical College.

The consideration of an offer of Rs. 14,000 in 3½ per cent. Government Promissory Notes from the Honorary Secretary, Sir Lawrence Jenkins Memorial Fund, for the foundation of a legal Scholarship in the name of the Honourable Sir Lawrence Jenkins, K. C. I. E. lately Chief Justice of the High Court of Judicature at Bombay.

And the consideration of an offer of Rs. 10,600 in 3 per cent. Government Promissory Notes from Rao Bahadur Sitaram Vishwanath Patwardhan for the foundation of a biennial Scholarship in the name of his late son, Prahlad, to be awarded to the candidate who may pass the B.A. Examination with the highest number of marks in Logic and Moral Philosophy from among the candidates having Marathi as their mother tongue.

[illegible] NEWS.

[illegible] WEEK.

[illegible] IN.

[illegible] DAY, SATURDAY, [illegible] OCTOBER.

After [illegible] day night it was a wonder that [illegible] possible at all yesterday morning, as the whole course was practically under water up till a late hour the night before. When play commenced, there was still a good deal of water about, but it was very little worse than it had been all the week. The competition was the second stage of the Medal Competition, which had been started on Wednesday when in the Senior class Messrs Kidd, Lattey and England tied for first place with scores of 43. Of these three Lattey played the best round yesterday morning and improved on his previous score by one stroke completing the nine holes in 42. He had a splendid card up to the last hole being 36 for eight holes with a two and a three to the seventh and eighth. He pulled his drive and got into the small screen guarding the green at the last, and took six strokes to hole out. England played an erratic round and although he got six of the holes in 36 he took two sevens and a six to the third, sixth and seventh, which spoilt his chance of success. M. F. Nicholson, who wins the second scratch prize, had returned a score of 44 on the first day and played a very steady game yesterday up to the sixth hole. He was one under fours, but had extremely bad luck at the seventh hole as his ball was practically unplayable, being buried in mud and grass. This cost him two strokes and he took six for the hole. He got the last two holes in four each and returned a score of 43. For the handicap prizes Lattey is also first with a nett score of 83, but as he has won the scratch prize he cannot take both; it therefore goes to Kidd who wins with a nett score of 86. Kidd does not drive a very long ball, but his approaching and putting are very accurate. He played a very fair round yesterday, but spoilt his card with a six and a seven at the second and sixth holes. Two competitors, Roberts and Powell, tie for the second handicap prize with nett scores of 90. The former player got the third and fourth holes in four, but took sixes to the second and fifth which rather spoilt an otherwise excellent round. Powell whose handicap is six returned scores of 48 on both days. Result of Senior class:—

In the Junior Competition the best cards returned were by Shaw and Cuesly who did the nine holes in 50. The latter, however, had returned a score of 60 on the first morning so had spoilt his chance. Shaw, however, had done a very good round of 46 the first day and wins first scratch prize with a score of 96. He did the fifth, seventh and eight holes in four, four and three respectively, but took seven strokes to no less than four of the other holes. Burns with 101 wins the second scratch prize. He also took seven strokes to four of the holes. Shaw was also first for the handicap prize, but as he also could not take both events, Cherry wins with a nett score of 89. He is practically a beginner at golf, but is an improving player and yesterday did the nine holes in 51. Murray and Owen with nett scores of 90 tie for second prize and will have to play off to decide who shall take it. Results:—

THE LADIES' CORNER.

THE CHARM OF SILK SATTEEN.

About the silk gowns of the present season there seems to linger a charm which a London correspondent, which is as irresistible as it is indescribable. To lovers of the picturesque the quaint, old-world brocades make a special appeal, calling up the fine old days of powder and patches, when my lady tripped in her crimson-lined [illegible] flowered sacque into her sedan chair. Except [illegible] of colour, however, the brocades [illegible] not much in common with their [illegible] and sateen days gone by. The old [illegible] were made of a texture so solid that it [illegible] them that they could stand alone, while [illegible] not very easy to comprehend [illegible] by been counted to them for righteousness, [illegible] is not a virtue which they could often [illegible] upon to exercise. As the same time [illegible] and heavier the [illegible] were designed [illegible] in those days, whereas to-day [illegible] manufacturer is to make his silks [illegible] possible. Only under the [illegible] and themselves, promptly [illegible] which demands [illegible] series, at all events [illegible] gowns for the [illegible] for home wear generally are concerned.

TAFFETAS AND SILK SILKS.

Even in the case of the taffetas [illegible] are employed for the [illegible] gowns which are useful for warm seasons, one finds fabrics of a superior texture, dyed too, in shot colourings, considerably to their charm. [illegible] combined with something of the sort [illegible] de Crine may be taken as the leading [illegible] of these new silks which promise to [illegible] during the early autumn. In stripes and [illegible] as well as in [illegible] tones, these [illegible] will make up most effectively, and some very [illegible] gowns have been arranged in them already, one [illegible] out in coat and skirt with touches of [illegible] becomingly introduced [illegible] coats, and with skirts that are short enough to clear the ground, but by no means tight round the knees or the ankles.

LEATHER IN THE TOILETTE.

Leather plays an ever-increasing part in decoration. Although coats and skirts are composed of the substance, finely coloured and fashioned after the latest tailor models, it is not to garments that they are intended only for the decoration. Ladies who travel much by motor have been responsible for many practical and useful articles made of leather. It was for them that waistcoats were first provided, and the general appreciation of this garment leaves the possibility open that the coat and skirt of finely dressed leather may not remain the monopoly of the motorist. Facings of this material are used with good effect. Buttons of it trim some of the new tweed coats as well as coats and skirts of [illegible] woollen materials than tweed. Collars of finely worked leather are decorative, and [illegible] be a feature of the winter fashions. In [illegible] these are offered. They are plain or tooled, with ornamentation such as touches of colour introduced. Panels of highly-polished leather are held together by fancy metal clasps, three or five of them being used in the scheme of ornamentation. Embossed plaques form the contrast to some of the pale leathers, and white glace, with pale lavender enamelled plaques, into which gold is worked, might be quoted as an instance of the standard of elegance attained. Cameos have been brought once more into the fashion, and grey or mole soft suede, much in vogue, would lend itself very well to a combination. Leather hats are shown in an abundance, suggesting that much favour will be bestowed on them. They have ceased to be more head coverings, and have become tasteful and pretty, both in colour and design.

MEMORIAL OF OTTERBURN.

A good start has been made with the excavation of the ruins of the old Keep of Southdean, lying on the northern slope of Carter Fell, in Jed Forest, the object being to [illegible] that remains of the walls [illegible] of the famous battle of Otterburn. The excavation is being carefully attended [illegible] so far the results are interesting and encouraging. What was formerly a grass-grown mound now reveals several feet of the massive tower and walls of the church of the time of Otterburn, and there are distinct traces of earlier and later structures. The massive octagonal font was found in perfect preservation. But probably the most interesting link with the past so far revealed is a smoothly polished small rectangular slab of freestone, 1 1-4 inches in thickness, and measuring 9 1-2 by 7 1-2 inches. On its polished surface are incised five crosses in allusion to the five wounds of Christ, and it is considered that this formed a portable altar in connection with the pre-Reformation church.

ANGLO-FRANCO.

Volapuk, which made a considerable stir years ago, is almost forgotten. Next we had Esperanto, and now we are threatened with Anglo-franco. This is the offspring of the "Entente Cordiale," and a brochure has appeared recommending its adoption. We will not express any opinion upon the proposal. Our readers can judge from this extract from the inventor's conclusion:—"In conclusion permit me to do this, though many apparatus to envy that language be special created for philologues and grammarians who dwell its conveniences, they ought that after all language be sole language in virtu of its powoir to communiqu the pensees of un to the intelligenes of another." This extract, at least, will effectually communicate the intelligence of the author.

LONG MINISTRIES.

The late Dr. Brew had been pastor of St. Ninian's, Perth, for within four years of the time allotted to man's life. Probably, as a joint ministry, there are none to equal those of the Rev. John Anderson, of Kilsyth, ordained September 3, 1793, and his son and successor, the Rev. Robert Anderson, died December 30, 1907, who thus occupied the same pulpit there in continuous succession for over 114 years, or for 130 years if you include the concurrent 15, from 1847 to 1862 during which they were colleagues. The Rev. David Anderson, Ceres, another son of the Rev. John Anderson, died last year in the sixty-ninth of his ministry.

RUSSIAN VIEW OF AVIATION.

Great interest is evinced in the progress of aviation in Russia as elsewhere. This fact, and the ignorance of the Russian population generally, sometimes leads to ludicrous results. A correspondent in Yalta (Crimea) sends us a cutting from a local paper showing an illustration of a fearsome-looking aeroplane gliding over an equally awe-inspiring fleet of warships. Inset is an imaginary picture of the fleet being destroyed by the monster. Beneath the picture is the inscription (translated): "The flight of the Englishman, Grahame White, over the fleet once more creates a panic in English maritime circles—showing the helplessness of the fleet in the case of an attack by aeroplanes."

AN ANCIENT INDUSTRY.

Ever since Hong Kong was established the industry of vermilion making, entirely in the hands of the Chinese, has been an important one, and factories at Hong Kong have inviolate trade secrets (says an American Consular report). The manufacture of this pigment is among the foremost of the colony's industries. There are something like one hundred small plants for the manufacture of vermilion in Hong Kong and Kowloon. The raw material comes from Australia and the vermilion is prepared altogether by what is known as the wet method. The Chinese made artificial cinabar long before Europe was a civilized country, and to this day there are trade secrets in the vermilion industry which no European has yet been able to fathom. Some of the manufactories here, between which the pulverized ore is ground are almost prehistoric.

VARIOUS PRESENTATIONS.

"Henry VIII." has generally had the advantage of good acting. Kean, Kemble, Booth, Miss Fanny Kemble, and Mrs. Siddons played in it at Drury Lane, Covent Garden, the Haymarket since its reproduction in 1767 at the last named house. Then most of us can remember the magnificent revival by Irving at the Lyceum, when he played Wolsey so finely, when Miss Ellen Terry was the Katherine, William Terriss the Henry, and Mr. Forbes-Robertson, whose delivery of the famous speech before the execution sent the audience into a frenzy of delight, the Buckingham. Nor was the Lyceum version the first which had the advantage of spectacle. The Coronation of Anne had already been interpolated in 1727, when it is said this one scene cost over £1,000, representing nearly two thousand nowadays—even in those times of "simplicity" and "adequacy."

TO SHOW "THE ACTING."

Sir Herbert Tree anxious that Shakespeare should be seen and not merely written about, enjoyed by the public and not merely discussed by the commentators, has spent a fortune in making "Henry III." attractive. Anxious to limit its representation to those "two short hours" promised by the author in the Prologue—which he has not yet succeeded in doing—Sir Herbert has cut the work considerably, but not enough. He has lopped off all the unnecessary politico-religious references so the causes of the [illegible]-stricken Queen Catherine's pare himself must have omitted if he kept his word about those two short hours, and, as drama, the work gains considerably. It was not to be expected that the actor would curtail the scene of the downfall of Wolsey, for that is the pith and marrow of the play—but he might speak it more rapidly. The piece, as presented, proceeds symmetrically and straightly. It begins with the Prologue, spoken excellently by Mr. Ross Shore, the Jester, standing before the curtain. It ends with the Coronation: the episode of the christening of the baby Princess Elizabeth has been cut away. The outstanding scenes are those of the Banqueting Hall in Wolsey's Palace with its crowds of merrymakers; the Water Gate of the Tower, as picturesquely beautiful as any in the production where Buckingham delivers his oration; the Hall in Blackfriars, where the Trial is held, a wonderful effect of solid grandeur and fascinating ceremonial; the Coronation, where we see the Abbey, lit by the sunlight through its great windows of stained glass, filled with the bishops and nobles, with its choir and the public beyond, extraordinarily realistic and elaborate in its ritual; the downfall of Wolsey, and the vision of Queen Katherine. Each has a magic of its own, each forms a part of a veritable pageant of English history.

SIR HERBERT TREE'S WOLSEY.

Sir Herbert Tree has never done anything better, in the more tragic phases of his art, than Wolsey. It is a simple and reserved portrait of the statesman-priest. Even amid the revelry, Wolsey is the ascetic, revealing nothing of that other side of the man which was not so averse to the pleasures of this life. It is not until the scene of Wolsey's withdrawal from the world that the character offers much scope, but here the actor played with splendid dignity and pathos. Sir Herbert's voice has gained a richer sonority and his manner a deeper sincerity. It was a most impressive performance, which only requires a little quickening. The Queen Katherine of Miss Violet Vanbrugh was admirable. Only once, at her trial, does Katherine assert herself as Queen, and here Miss Vanbrugh rose to a high pitch of intensity and storm. Her voice is wonderfully flexible and varied, and expresses each emotion by a change of timbre as natural as effective. As the despairing woman, full of grief, the actress played with beautiful and simple earnestness. Entirely lacking in dignity—in which reading the actor may be quite right—Mr Arthur Bourchier, as King Henry, will be, perhaps, the most popular figure in the cast. He was "bluff King Hall" all the time. He danced and flirted and stormed and was a hypocrite with tremendous energy and many a clever touch. Only that one should have liked an occasional glimpse of majesty—especially in the final Scene—this Henry is a brilliant piece of work. In appearance Mr. Bourchier is astonishingly like the accepted portraits. The Buckingham of Mr. Henry Ainley was very fine indeed. At first impatuous and hasty, showing Buckingham the fiery and haughty nobleman, and afterwards as the man to whom death is coming, when the actor delivered the lovely speech with intense pathos and beautiful declamation, Mr. Ainley achieved what is perhaps the greatest thing of his career. Miss Laura Cowie was a demure and dainty Anne Bullen, showing considerable character, too, Miss Cowie danced charmingly in the Masque. Other important parts were admirably played by Mr. A. E George, Mr. Gerald Lawrence, Mr. Cookson Mr. Osivart, Mr. Henry Morrell, and others.

"A BOLT FROM THE BLUE."

"A Bolt from the Blue" is sheer melodrama of a particularly impossible kind. It has moments of breathless suspense—several times on the opening night one held their breath and wondered what was going to happen. But, while this quality may make a success of the new piece produced at the Duke of York's Theatre with that large portion of the public that loves to be "thrilled," the French authors, MM. Bernard and Ashis, have conspired so that nothing which happens—no matter how exciting it may be—has the slightest plausibility or the faintest relation to actuality. The only part of the play which is natural is the dialogue, which the translator, Mr. Cosmo Hamilton, has made admirably restrained and subdued. The scene remains in France. In a low cabaret, a den of pickpockets and worse, Claude Brevin, a young man of good breeding, enters starving. He is a gentleman of good instincts, but he consents to go to an actress's flat to rob her of certain compromising letters she holds, and, if necessary, to kill her! He is given good clothes and meets her at a ball, escorts her to her flat, still intent on carrying out the crime, and there saves her from a real Apache, who comes on a similar errand of burglary. Then he confesses, and the end is happiness.

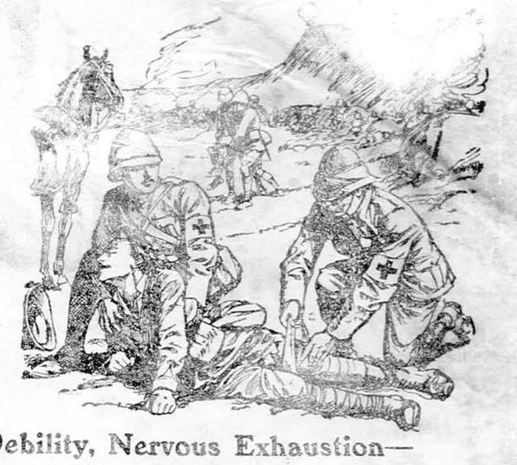
A Medical



Debility, Nervous Exhaustion—

Certainly the absolute confidence of eminent doctors is evidence enough of the exceptional benefits imparted by Phosferine. Even doctors cannot do more to prove their confidence than by using Phosferine to remedy their own disorders. Could any proof be more definite, more convincing than the testimony of John Dodd, D.S.M., Medical Officer in the late South African War, who says: "After being shot through both lungs I was dangerously reduced, and I attribute it solely to Phosferine that I regained my usual health. I have proved the value of Phosferine in brain, nerve, and muscular exhaustion." This brilliant medical officer found Phosferine particularly serviceable for insufficiency of nerve force, and declares nothing was so suitable in combating fevers, chills, &c.

Not possible now

John Dodd, D.S.M. (late of the Medical Staff, 5th Imperial Yeomanry, 1st Brigade, South Africa), Ladysmith House, Witton-le-Wear, writes:—"I have had considerable experience in the use of your invaluable remedy Phosferine, and it has proved particularly serviceable where there exists insufficiency of nerve force. This condition, often due to primary weakness, lays the system open to influenza, colds, neuralgia, rheumatism, indigestion, fevers, and in remedying this predisposition I have found nothing so suitable as your preparation. Phosferine invariably goes to the root of the mischief direct. The certainty of its action is moreover an estimable feature. In debility and kindred ailments, caused by a reduced system, it has unprecedented power, and in my own case I can best evidence to its exceptional value, and am indeed greatly indebted to its wonderful restorative properties. During the late war in South Africa, I was shot through both lungs and pericardium and that reduced me most dangerously; after taking Phosferine for about two months it brought me back to my usual health. I attribute this solely to the use of Phosferine. I have advised Phosferine in several cases, and proved its value in brain, nerve, and muscular exhaustion."—March 11, 1910.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,
Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.
"I DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent of the London Medical Mission.
"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,
Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.
"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. WHITMORE,
Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.
"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and nutritive properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine of which I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."
